KKR Credit Income Fund Monthly Investment Update Correction

KKR Credit Income Fund (the Trust) (ASX: KKC) wishes to advise that there was an incorrect reference to NTA (Net Tangible Assets) in the "KKC Overview" section on page 4 of the recent released Monthly Investor Update for the period ending 28 February 2025. The NTA is incorrectly quoted as the share price of $2.3308, rather than the actual NTA of $2.45. The revised Monthly Investor Update is attached in below.

Portfolio Update:

- KKC delivered a +0.10% return in February. Loans outperformed High Yield bonds over the month and B rated assets drove performance across asset classes.
- This contrasts with broader market performance, as the underlying assets are idiosyncratic. While they may move in line with the market at times, performance can also deviate.
- The weighted average price of the underlying KKC assets in the portfolio stood at 97.9% of par as at month end. The Yield to Maturity, which is inversely related to prices, stood at 9.5% and the current yield of the underlying assets in the portfolio was 8.5%<sup>(3)</sup>.
- European Direct Lending (EDL) had no new additions during the month. There was one realisation, a US intellectual property management solutions provider. EDL represents ~42% of KKC's portfolio invested as at month end. A case study on one of our EDL deals can be found on page 3.

Distribution Update:

- KKC declared a monthly distribution of A$0.0167 which equates to an annualised distribution rate of 8.18% of NTA. This is in line with the announced FY25 distribution estimate of A$0.20. The distribution guidance for the year ending 30 June 2025 will keep the monthly distribution target unchanged at A$0.0167 per unit per month, or A$0.20 per annum. As of 28 February, ASX Unit Price is A$2.33, this represents a yield of ~8.59%<sup>(2)</sup>.

Market Update:

- High Yield bonds returned +0.65%<sup>(8)</sup> in February amid lower rates, underwhelming issuance, and steady inflows. Loans returned +0.10%<sup>(9)</sup>, their lightest monthly gain since October 2023, as the market recalibrated Fed expectations amid policy uncertainty and weak data prints across the Purchasing Managers' Index, spending, consumer confidence and labour markets.

Portfolio Case Study

Company Overview

- Nordic Climate Group (“NCG”) is among the market leaders in the installation and servicing of cooling and heating systems in the Nordic region. The business was formed in 2021 with the combination of 16 local cooling companies in Sweden and has continued to scale via M&A. The group today consists of 67 companies with ~1,500 FTEs.
- NCG provides both system installation (47% of revenue) and service & repair (40% of revenue) to a highly diversified customer base. Approximately 85% of sales are direct to the end-customer and 15% via turn-key contractors (e.g. construction companies or multi-technical installation companies).

Transaction Overview

- In May 2022, Altor acquired a ~60% majority stake in NCG (~40% owned by management team and 380+ employees), financing the transaction with credit facilities from local relationship banks. Given the growth of the business since acquisition, Altor was seeking a new partner to refinance the capital structure and provide additional capital for future M&A.
- In June 2024, KKR provided a 100% financing solution to NCG, investing ~€190 million across a First Lien Term Loan (split into EUR and SEK tranches) and Delayed Draw Term Loan.
- Our investment thesis was predicated on: (i) resilient market growing at ~4% CAGR, supported by tailwinds including energy efficiency regulation driving investment into cooling & heating systems; (ii) NCG’s competitive positioning in a highly fragmented industry; (iii) NCG’s diversified revenue base with 97% of installation projects <€500k in value and ~2/3 of gross profit generated from re-occurring service assignments; (iv) attractive historical financial performance; and (v) sponsorship by Altor which has differentiated experience in the space.
